

Thanks, from the Fish

The fish in Liz's tank swam past the tall plants. The fish were now big - and strong too. Liz had been the best pet mom!

Every two weeks, Liz had to work to clean everything in the fish tank. She had a list to prompt her to do each step. Step 1: Liz had to scrub the glass with a stiff brush. Step 2: Liz had to rub every pink rock. Step 3: Liz had to also scrub the front, sides, and back of the tank.

In the midst of each tank scrub, it struck Liz that there was not too much stress with this task. In fact, it felt very good to get rid of the mess on everything.

At the end of the job, the tank was set until the next scrub! If the fish could chat, they would tell Liz, “Thanks!”
