

A Japanese Lunch

Ren is from Japan, but as of last year, her home is in Dallas, Texas. Ren likes to share things from her Japanese life with her friends.

Ren invites her pal, Filip, to come over and have lunch one day. Ren tells Filip that she will make him a Japanese dish for lunch. Filip is pleased that Ren would think to do this for him. Ren must recognize that he has not had a Japanese lunch before.

Once Filip is at Ren's home, he is quick to contribute. The two work together to finish the job of making lunch. Filip takes a look in the pan and sees a dish like nothing he's ever seen before. It looks like a pancake, but it has shrimp, fish, and crisp vegetables. Ren's home smells fantastic! Filip wants to dig in right away!

Ren demonstrates to Filip how to grill the pancake so that it is not left incomplete. The pancakes get put on plates. Then, the two friends sit and snack on Japanese pancakes and sip on some lemonade.
